

CHILD NEGLECT AND ABUSE IN MINNESOTA

Child neglect and abuse threaten the safety and well-being of children. In 2009, there were nearly 26,000 reports of child maltreatment in Minnesota; 44 children suffered life-threatening injuries and 21 children died from maltreatment. Experiences of child neglect and abuse shape child development and have life-long effects.

Reports of Child Neglect and Abuse 2009
Non-medical neglect	16,485
Physical abuse	7,052
Sexual abuse	2,046
Medical neglect	281
Total number of maltreatment reports	25,864

19 children under the age of 2 died from maltreatment and 29 children under the age of 2 suffered life-threatening injuries in 2009

Reports of child maltreatment come from a variety of people, including individuals who are mandated by law to report suspected child maltreatment.

Child neglect is the most common form of child maltreatment and occurs when a child's caregiver fails to:

- supply the child with necessary food, clothing, shelter, medical, or mental health care, education or appropriate supervision;
- protect the child from conditions or actions that endanger the child; or
- take steps to ensure that a child is educated according to the law.

Children 0-3 are reported for neglect at the highest rate of all age groups.

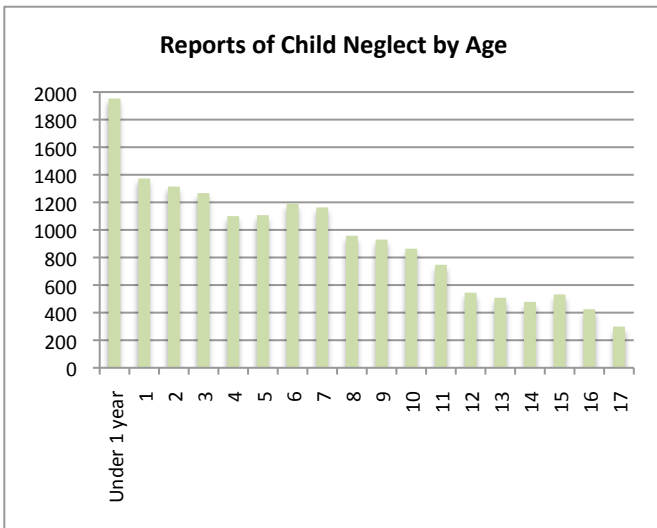

Person Reporting Suspected Child Maltreatment	Percent of Reports
Law enforcement/courts	27.8
School personnel	22.0
Social worker/health practitioner	23.3
Parent or relative	9.6
Non-relative caregiver	2.9
Friend/acquaintance/neighbor	4.4
Other/anonymous	9.7

Children whose parents cannot safely care for them are placed in family foster homes or group residential facilities. In 2009, approximately 12,000 children spent some time in out-of-home care.

American Indian and African American/Black children are disproportionately represented in out-of-home care:

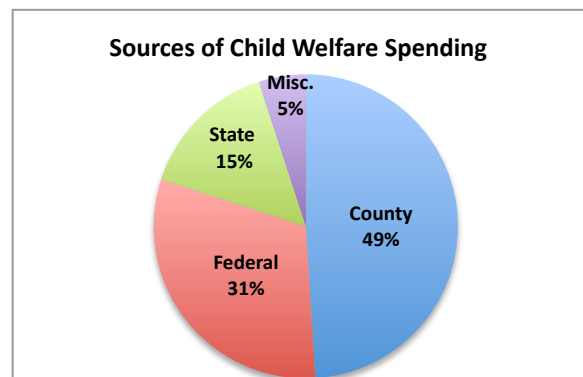

- American Indian children are 12 times more likely than a White child to be placed in out-of-home care; and
- African American/Black children are 5 times more likely than a White child to be placed in out-of-home care.

Counties are responsible for nearly half of all funding in Minnesota's child welfare system.

Child abuse can be physical, mental or sexual.

- Physical abuse is any physical injury or threat of harm or injury, inflicted by a caregiver upon a child other than by accidental means.
- Mental injury is harm to the child's psychological capacity or emotional stability evidenced by an observable and substantial impairment of the child's functioning.
- Sexual abuse is the subjection of a child to a criminal sexual act or threatened act.
